1. At present there are three groups in Rumania struggling for power:
 - a. Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej's group which is strong in the economic field.
 - b. The Soviet group inside the Ministry of National Defense, which through General Emil Bodnaras controls the army and a part of the police forces.
 - c. Iosif Chisinevski's group, which is in control of national education, public health, and foreign police (?).
2. Gheorghiu-Dej controls most of the cabinet and the Politburo, whereas Bodnaras has control of the army. General Stefan Pavel, Minister of the Interior, and Alexandru Draghiu, Minister of State Security, both support Bodnaras. The various upheavals inside the Government have already shown that ministers in charge of various technical services are likely to be sacrificed. On the other hand, Bodnaras's group is stable and feared.
3. Anti-Semitism among the Rumanian Communists is exaggerated.
